Primary election Tuesday

Letcher County residents will vote Tuesday in a primary election distinguished mainly by the lack of interest in it.
Voten will choose Democratic and Republican nominees for United States Senator and Congressman from the Seventh District.
Lt. Gov. Wilson W. Wyatt is seeking the Democratic nomination for the Senate with only to-ken opposition from Marion Vance of Glasgow and James L. Delk of Louisville.

Charles D. Wheeler, Ashland, also is a candidate for the Republican nomination.
The November election, which is expected to pit Wyatt against Morton for Senator, and which also will include county school board races, is expected to arouse more interest here.

Reach for the impossiblemake it work, county urged

Letcher County residents were urged today to reach out and grab for the impossible and maybe make it go.

The speaker was Paul Hadley of the State Department of Commerce, the man who last week fired the imaginations of citizens here with a proposal for construction of "Cloud City," a resort to be located on top of Pine Mountain.

Hadley was back in town to explain his "Cloud City" proposal at a public meeting at the courthouse in whitesburg.

He said the mountains of Letcher County are "one of the most beautiful spots in Kentucky-bar none."

"one of the most beautiful spots in Kentucky-bar none,"

The view from the top of Pine Mountain, he said, is "a breathtaking panorama of sheer beauty matched nowhere in Kentucky" and "would challenge the best they have to offer us in the Smokies,"

"Gatlinburg (a resort town in the Smokies) in its fondest dreams will never have the view of Cloud City, "Hadley said, because Gatlinburg is situated in a valley.

Hadley asked his hearens to imagine a complete new city on the mountain, one part set aside for commercial development, the other for private residential development, the other for private residential development.

"Just picture yourself three stories from the ground at the top of that ridge in the Sky Room," one of the finest restaurants in the South, with a view of the Kentucky River Valley on one side and the Cumberland River Valley on the other."

side and the Cumperiano raver variety on ther."

Hadley said there is no genuine resort area in Kentucky yet, although the state is on the route from the north to the larger resort areas of Plorida and the South. He said he thinks the "Cloud City" development should be aimed at people whose children are about to leave home or who are already grandparents. The altitude of Pine Mountain is not high enough to affect the heart, but is above the mosquito line and high enough for residents to feel free, not fettered as they are in a city. And a man with fafting vision could see in the waning days of sight some of the most beautiful scenery anywhere, he added, Hadley said the roposed resort town would not harm Whitesburg but on the contrary would make it grow. "Whatever business you are in or would like to be in can be in Cloud City," he said.

"As Cloud City grows, more and more people will be needed to work in it, and they won't live there."

live there."

Hadley came to Whitesburg last week at the invitation of the Whitesburg Planning and Zoning Commission to discuss tourist potential in the Whitesburg area and by the time he left had overseen the organization of a corporation to buy land and proceed with the development of "Cloud City."

He returned today to explain his proposal to a wider audience.

land and proceed with the development of "Cloud City."

He returned today to explain his proposal to a wider audience.

Meanwhile, the new corporation already has started work to obtain options on the 6,000 acres of mountain-top land needed in the project.

The Letcher County Bar Association voted to work as a body to help in the legal work needed to get the options, and already letters to property owners are being prepared.

The corporation also is preparing to seek professional planning advice on the project.

Hadley said today there should be very rigid restrictions on the type of construction and design of buildings in "Cloud City." County planning and zoning regulations with be necessary, he said, to prevent access roads to the resort area from being cluttered up. "We don't want Cloud City to be the only beautiful thing in Letcher County," he said, "We want everything to be beautiful. It must be to be of any value to us."

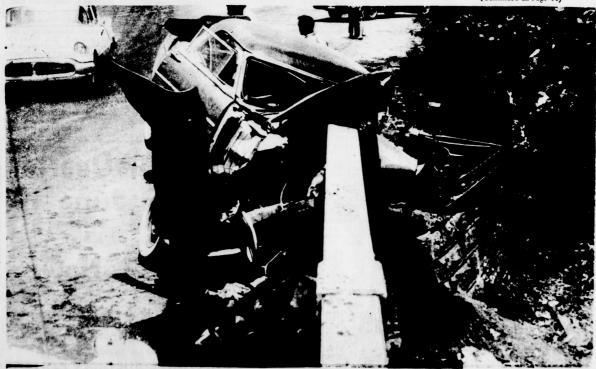

After the new town is established, sites will be sold or leased for motel, restaurant and other business development.

Residents of Whitesburg and Letcher County would have first priority on the land available, Then, after local interests had invested as much as they wanted to, the town would be opened to investment from the rest of Kentucky and after that to the nation.

The Cloud City corporation is planning to sell stock at $10 a share. An additional $30 is to be borrowed against the $10, and when the indebtedness is repaid, each share would be worth $100.

"The opportunity is here—the lack is in the individuals themselves," Haddley said, referring to Eastem Kentucky's current economic situation.

Thornton CHILDREN VISIT BRUCE RUDD FAMILY: HALLS GO FISHING

By MABEL KISER

Mrs. Bruce Rudd had their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hooper, Paintsville; their son, Donald Ray, and his wife Loraine and children all for dinner Sunday. The Hoopers were overnight guests Saturday, I am sure Mrs. Rudd enjoyed every minute of it for she is the kind of mother whose heart is wrapped up in her children. Mr. and Mrs. Hillard Hall and family went fishing in Cherokee Lake, Tenn., over the week end. Mrs. Hall says they didn't catch too many fish; maybe they were too busy enjoying life with the children. Take your children and go fishing—maybe you will get real tired and won't catch too many fish; but I am sure you will build up happy family memories for the children. The advice you give them at a time of the pitfalls of life will linger on and carry more weight than many a scolding. Mrs. Hillard Hall and Mrs. Curtis Hall, Ermine, gave a household shower in honor of the family of Cicero, Combs, whose house burned down earlier this month in Mayking, Brides the hostesses those attending were Misses Teresa Franklin, DeVone Bracishaw, Orpha Blair, Mesdames Bill Hall, Willard Watt, Orville Doyle, Zenneth Bentley, Wallace Kincer, Ruda Combs, Richard Adams, Urice Adams, Johnnie Fulton, Paul Underwood, Herbert Freeman, Berton Hall, Morris Franklin, C. We need one more curriculum field and need to offer 1/2 unit more classes than we've had this year. Now, for the first time, we have enough certified teachers to meet the state requirements for a provisional school. Our school may be old, and what most people call inadequate, but we love it and are working hard to build it up.

VACATIONERS AND WEEDING TIME " ARRIVE AT BLUEFIELD TOGETHER

BY LOVELL CAUDILL

Vacationers and garden work ave arrived at the same time, naking it tough on the Caudilis of Bluefield.

Last week Jim Gaudill was some from Indianapolis, Ind., and the family had to take time to hoe the garden before their fishing trip. Not too many fish saught, but a good trip for the soys.

Lots of the good folks have been dick. For one, Aunt Phoebe Dixon has undergone surgery and a home again feeling some better.

Mrs. Varge Holcomb is in Lex-

s home again feeling some beteff.
Mrs. Varge Holcomb is in Lexington to undergo surgery for removal of skidney. We sure wish her the best of luck.
Our deepest sympathy goes to the family and friends of Kelly Holcomb of Ulvah, who died after undergoing surgery at Mount Mary Hospital in Hazard.
We wish also to extend our deep sympathy to Edna and Opal Halcomb in the loss of their 14-year old som, who died two days before his uncle Kelly.
Sallie Brown is still on a spry foot. She spent the week end with Flora and the Vemon Biairs of Blair Branch. They also attended the baptism of Mr, and Mrs. Harrison Nicholas.
Fishing is still the chief subject here. Last week Less Caudill hauled out a carp 31 inches long weighing 15 pounds. He has also been taking home some fine catfish. His garden is not weedy, either.

Polly Mitchell is improving slowly: she has been seen as far out as the stock sale. Sure good to see her stirring.

The last bicycle seen as far down as Jim Caudill's was pedaled by Roger Whitaker and little Jimmy Darrell Pields, just sight-seeing.

Kentucky's problems:

1. Too few people have too much money, and too much influence, and are not using it to develop the area.

2. Too many of us have the idea that if anything comes from Kentucky, it can't be much, or if a person is from our own home town, he can't be much. "Why can't we look at our fellow citizens and admit they might have something?" Hadley saked.

Hadley encouraged his listeners to provide incentive to keep their own children in their home towns. Most businessmen, he said, refuse to offer their own children the same opportunities with their firms they would give someone hired, because the owners don't think their children are smart enough.

because the owners don't think their children are smart enough.

The same attitude, he added, exists in banks all over the country. Banks don't exactly discourage young people with new ideas, but they don't do anything to encourage them either, he

3. Politics in any form has colutely no place in the Cloud City project, Hadley said. Too many towns recognize there is no time for pettiness for effort to be wasted in a community splut by petty jealousles, he said.

Hadley emphasized that under the arricles of incorporation of the Cloud City group, no one person or group of persons can control more than 15 per cent of the stock.

He said he hoped "every kid in town" would find off jobs to eam $10 so he could buy a share of stock in the new town. Employers will be asked to set up a payroll deduction plan to help their employees buy stock when it is ready to go on sale, he added.

"Every man, woman and child can participate in the new development if he wants to," Hadley said.

Any landowner who puts land values above what they are worth is doing a disservice to the community and the state, Hadley pointed out.
